British May Send Troops to Russia

Land Forces May Go to Crimea; RAF Is Already Fighting

LONDON.—(AP)—British aid for Russian armies is being rushed to the western front in a rapidly increasing tide, it was authoritatively reported Thursday, as dispatches to London painted a darkened outlook for the Red army forces at Leningrad and in the Crimea, in the south.

With the RAF only Wednesday disclosed to be flying in battles with the Russians a reliable source said Thursday that British tanks may soon be in action with the Soviet against the Germans.

Furthermore, newspaper speculation that British imperial troops might be sent through Iran into Soviet Caucasus to aid hard pressed Russia was assumed in new significance with the disclosure of a series of military staff conferences involving troops in this area.

The need for early British action seemed to be pointed by reports in authoritative circles that a German attack on Crimea was developing by force which may be anything up to four divisions, an attack apparently aimed at the whole peninsula rather than at just a few points.

Authorized quarters said they lacked information regarding the size of the Russian garrison on Crimea and unable to guess as to how well they would be able to resist even a small attacking force.

The Russians, it was understood, were establishing schools of Russian military experts who are expected to visit Britain for tank instruction.

Tank production for the month in England will set a new record and the British intend to keep this volume. The four divisions reported to be developing an attack on the Crimea were said to be of about 17,000 men each.

Bales Cotton Ginned Fewer Than Last Year

Cotton figures for Hempstead county up to September 1 show that 280 bales bales for the same period a year ago, have been ginned compared with 392 according to figures released by the government cotton census department.

Some women won't stock the fruit cupboard this year because they'll think prices uneasy.

Neutrality Act Repeal Sought in the Senate

Sen. McKellar Introduces Resolution in Senate Thursday

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) introduced in the senate Thursday a resolution to repeal the neutrality act which bans the arming of American merchant ships and prevents them from entering combat zones.

Declaring that the act was in "direct conflict with the freedom of the seas policy," McKellar told his colleagues that the "law ought to be repealed outright."

McKellar has been a consistent supporter of the administration's policy and there was no indication as to whether he introduced the repealer with the knowledge of the senate leaders.

President Roosevelt said Thursday that a revision of repeal of the act was being studied indicating that action might be forthcoming next week.

McKellar said he thought that "while the law is on the statute books the government is paying virtually no attention to it and it ought to be repealed."

Sen. Taft (Rep. Ohio) expressed the belief that repeal would be "equivalent to a declaration of war."

Rep. Woodruff (Rep-Mich.) said Roosevelt was going to give congress an opportunity to agree with Mr. Roosevelt that the act should be repealed.

"The law is the merest shell of an empty statute which the government doesn't intend to enforce," Woodruff said.

"Every informed member of congress," he said "and observers know that Roosevelt has not left a vestige of the neutrality act unviolated. It is not in letter, and judging from his past performances it matters little to him whether they did or did not modify or repeal the remnants of the act; because Mr. Roosevelt, in effect, repealed and modified it himself."

Collins Trails Narrowly With Vote Nearly Complete

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—Almost complete official and unofficial returns from Tuesday's special senatorial election in Mississippi indicated Wednesday night Representative Will Doxey, 49, was elected to fill the 15-month unexpired term of the late Pat Harrison.

Doxey's margin over Representative Ross Collins, 61, was only 607 but it of the state's 1,675 precincts. The vote represented the vote from all but 10 in the 1,644 precincts reported was:

Doxey 59,232
Collins 58,625

The official canvass will be needed to determine the winner. The winner will take office as soon as his victory is proclaimed, and hold his seat until January 1943.

In 'Rotting Hulk' John Paul Jones Won First Great America Sea Victory, Against the British

Here Is Story of the Good Ship Bon Homme Richard

Proudly backgrounded by a great tradition of historic victories, the United States Navy may, today, be facing its greatest test. Now, as ever, it is pledged to maintain the American policy of freedom of the seas. The story of how that policy was established, how the tradition of an ever-victorious navy has been maintained, is brought to you in "Our Navy Fights—and Wins"—a six-part series, of which the first installment appears below.

By TOM WOLF
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

It is the spring of 1779. A crowd is gathering on the dock at a French port where the Duc de Duras, an old East Indian, has been tied up, rotting for years. She was a fine ship in her day, but long ago they condemned her, laid her up as a hulk. Yet now they are preparing to take her to sea again.

"How curious these American Revolutionists must be," says a man in the crowd. "They take this rotting hulk and expect to fight the English. What use is she?"

What use, monsieur? What use indeed! . . . This "rotting hulk," refitted and renamed, was to win the first naval victory of the new-born United States.

The Bon Homme Richard, called the Duc de Duras before France refitted her for the Americans, sailed north against England in early fall. Her captain was a veteran master who called himself Paul Jones. His real name was John Paul, but he had given it up, and taken the "Jones" after some trouble at sea in which a man had been killed.

Jones was a short man, not over 3 feet, 7 inches. But years of sailing had put amazing strength into his disproportionately long arms and back. He had light hair, sharp features and a bad temper.

John Paul Jones' "fleet" consisted of the Alliance, a 36-gun frigate; the Pallas, a 32-gun merchant ship; and the Richard. The Richard carried six 18-pounders on her gun deck, twenty-eight 12-pounders on her main deck and 8 six-pounders on her quarterdeck and forecabin. Not a very formidable fleet, but a beginning.

Jones and his fleet sailed north, through the Irish Sea, around Scotland and started down the east coast of Britain. He had captured several merchant prizes but was yet to get into the fight for which he and his crew itched.

Late one afternoon (it was September 23), just off Gibraltar Head, Yorkshire, the Richard's lookout spied sail to the east. As the ships drew closer, Jones made out 40 ships of Britain's Baltic merchant fleet, returning home under convoy of the Serapis, 44 guns, and the Countess of Scarborough, 22.

The Richard was outclassed by the longer-range guns of the Serapis, a new double-decker. But it was growing dark, and Jones knew that, with a convoy to protect, the Serapis would come in close to try to end a fight before dark. He bent every available sail on the Richard to come up for battle. The Pallas bore down on the Countess of Scarborough. The Alliance was still far in the rear.

Sea calm, a Half-moon moon—
And a Battle
It was about seven in the evening when the two big ships came within hailing distance. The sea was smooth, weather perfect. A harvest moon was rising in the west to light the battle. The men of Yorkshire and their families gathered on the cliffs to watch the Serapis make short work of the upstart colonials.

"What ship is that?" bellowed Captain Richard Pearson from the Serapis.

"Come a little nearer and I'll tell you," bawled Jones.

"What are you laden with?" yelled Pearson.

"Round, grape and double-headed shot," shouted Jones.

A broadside from the Serapis greeted this answer. Jones set his always-tight lips tighter. Bucking the Richard's topsails to swing square to the enemy, Jones called for a broadside reply. Then came the first of a series of accidents that a score of times almost cost the battle. Two of the Richard's six 18-pounders blew up, killing their crews and blasting the deck above them skywards. Jones shouted an order to abandon the rest. His heaviest, most damaging armament was out of the battle.

Again bad luck dogged the Richard. A sudden squall now filled her sails, and she shot ahead of the Serapis—a fatal move when your guns are mounted for side action. Seizing the opening, Pearson luffed the Serapis across the Richard's stern to pour a broadside full into

Claims U-Boats Sink 12 Ships

Dakar Believed to Be German Submarine Base

BERLIN.—(AP)—The Germans declared Thursday that U-boats off the west coast of Africa had destroyed 11 merchantmen of a convoy of 12 ships sailing toward England despite powerful protection by destroyers.

The 11 ships totaled 78,000 tons were sunk.

(While neither the special or general communiques from Berlin Thursday located the attack more precisely than off the African coast there have been stories covered by Vichy's denial, suggesting that Dakar, westernmost port of the continent, is being used or being prepared for use as a German submarine base.)

Hand to Hand Fighting Forces Germans Back

Russians Claim Position on Entire Front Is Strengthened

By the Associated Press
German military dispatches reported violent hand to hand fighting raging in the streets of Leningrad suburbs Thursday while the Russians declared that cavalry charges and thrusts by cannon blazing Soviet tanks had hurled the Nazis back 6 miles on the city's outskirts.

German losses were described as enormous in the bloody see-saw battle for the old Czarist capital.

On the central front a Soviet bulletin reported that Marshal Semion Timoshenko's Red armies were pushing counter offensives in the Gomel sector, midway between Smolensk and Kiev, in a drive to lift the pressure on the Russian troops in the Ukraine.

Nazi Dodge Predictions
Nazi military quarters, dodging any prediction as to when Leningrad would fall, declared that positions of the Red army defenders was "becoming more and more hopeless."

The Russians, however, countered with the assertion that the fierce battle was beginning to turn in favor of Marshal Klementi Voroshilov's defense forces.

Soviet counter attacks in greater numbers and strength were reported stemming the Nazi shock troops were pushing deeper into the heart of the city of 3,200,000 after crushing Soviet resistance in at least two villages on the outskirts.

The German assault was pictured as fighting the Russians hand to hand with bayonets, hand grenades in a bloody advance from street to street and house to house. A single German high command asserted that desperate attempts by the remnants of four Red armies to break out of a Nazi trap east of Kiev had been smashed with bloody losses.

Agent Advises Farmers to Save Seeds

Increase Defense Demands Means Feed Crops Would Be Logical

With increased demands for dairy and poultry products by the defense program, feed crop production logically has increased in importance. Therefore, saving of planting seed, and proper storage are particularly important now, says Oliver L. Adams, county agent.

Weevils are the most serious insect pests of peas and beans in storage in Arkansas, and where no care is taken to prevent breeding of these pests, seed losses of as much as 50 per cent occur, according to special information received from William R. Horsfall, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Weevil injury, says the entomologist, begins in the field before harvest, and continues into the fall and early winter, unless certain precautions are taken. Of course, early harvesting and threshing means less injury in the field.

The problem of adequate storage space which is sufficiently tight may be solved on most farms by using barrels or drums. This year, especially, drums which contained calcium arsenate are plentiful and may be used. Lard, vinegar, or lime-sulphur barrels likewise make good bins for storing peas and beans. Use of barrels with loose fitting staves should be avoided. Of course, seed so stored must be thoroughly dry before it is placed in the barrels or drums in order to prevent heating.

That part of the crop which is intended for seed may be stored safely for long periods when placed with very dry dust in the drums or barrels. Dusts such as road dust, wood-ashes, and slaked lime are most useful. The dust is first sifted through a 16-mesh screen, in order to remove the lumps. The seed and dust are added in alternate layers in the proportion of two gallons of seed to one gallon of dust.

As each barrel or drum is filled, cover with a layer of dust, and then store in a dry place until planting time. The seed and dust may be readily separated by screening.

That part of the crop which is used for food or is to be marketed should be fumigated, as there is no better or more economical treatment. There again, the seed should be stored in drums or barrels, which may be filled to within two inches of the top of the barrels. On top of the seed pour two teaspoonful of carbon disulphide for each bushel of seed. Tie a sheet of building paper or heavy tarpaulin tight over each barrel and allow to stand. Repeat every six weeks until cold weather.

Carbon disulphide is highly inflammable like a high grade of gasoline and should be handled as carefully. Barrels or bins being so treated should be isolated from other farm structures. Soybeans in storage do not have any serious insect pests and they need not be especially treated, Horsfall said.

Ex-Friends Are Very Critical

Administration's Friends Are Now a Thorn in Side

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — A list of this administration's one-time friends, appointees or otherwise favored persons who have become critical thorns in the administration's side would be longer than your arms.

High up on that list is the genial gentleman from Virginia, Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, who, after a year of comparative quiet while stringing along with the President's foreign policies, has busted loose again with one of the strongest denunciations of the defense production lag that has come from any Democratic quarter.

Although it never was widely known and now is almost forgotten, it was President Roosevelt who opened the door of the United States Senate for the former Virginia governor.

At one time, before the prenomination campaign of 1932, Byrd was Roosevelt's selection for chairman of the national Democratic committee. Byrd would have had the post, too, but John J. Haskins didn't resign as expected. After Roosevelt's first election, however, he was in position to bring Byrd to the senate—by appointing Virginia Senator Claude A. Swanson as secretary of the navy. Byrd then was appointed to succeed Swanson, and has held the seat ever since.

Opposed Pump-Priming
Senator Byrd hardly had taken his seat before his differences with the administration became apparent. As governor, he had balanced the Virginia budget and drastically reorganized the state government, much to the consternation and unhappiness of the bureaucrats.

Pump-priming with government funds wasn't his idea of the way to float the country out of the depression. Expansion of government through the establishment of many new bureaus and agencies wasn't his idea of economy. The new senator said so.

Byrd has been saying it ever since, and in such language that he almost always makes himself heard. This prodigious administration policies continued through the reorganization fight, the court bill fight, various relief expenditures, the NRA, the labor relations bill, and continuation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Almost always, Byrd drove his wedge at the weakest point. It hurt.

Therefore, it must have been some relief to administration leaders when the junior senator from Virginia went all out for the President's foreign policies. It must have lightened the load considerably for the men who carry the load on Capitol Hill to find one of the senate's chief foes of spending in the administration camp during the scrap for those vast outlays for national defense.

They should have known that it was too good to last. About a year ago, Senator Byrd threw out a hint when he opened up on the snail's pace with which defense production was getting under way. Then, according to his own statement, he kept quiet just to see if the snails wouldn't unravel by themselves.

He thinks they haven't. So now, the apple king from Virginia (his apple orchards are among the largest in the country) and newspaper publisher (he has papers at Winchester and Harrisonburg) is at it again. His goal is elimination of waste in the defense effort; an approach to the all-out production which he feels the appropriations warrant; and a one-man defense production head.

You'll probably be hearing a lot from Byrd of Virginia in the months to come.

We, the Women

Try Yourself Out on This "Companionship Quiz"

By RUTH MILLETT

That companionship is one of the cornerstones of a successful marriage is a familiar truism—so familiar, in fact, that many wives never give it a thought. Do you? Check yourself by answering these questions:

If HE gets a kick out of the funnies, do you read them, too? Or do you say, when you hear him chuckling out loud over some comic character, "How in the world a grown person can find anything amusing in the funny papers is more than I can understand?"

If HE thinks coffee is one of the good things of life, do you usually have at least one cup with him—or do you tell him that he is going to ruin his health drinking so much coffee?

If HE has a few favorite radio programs, do you sit down and listen to them with him—or do you take that time to clean out your bureau drawers or hang around in the kitchen?

If HE likes the out-of-doors, have you learned to rough it with him—or do you stick close to home where you can wear your high heels and not worry about chipping your nail polish?

Is Your Dress for Him Or Others?

If HE notices your clothes and loves to see you dressed up, do you dress carefully all the time—or do you look any old way around the house and concentrate on looking stunning when you go out?

If HE loves to read, have you learned to sit quietly for an evening amusing yourself with a book—or do you keep interrupting him to comment on your day's doings?

If HE is interested in a hobby, do you encourage him by making it easy for him to pursue it and by adding to his equipment at birthdays and Christmas—or do you complain that it takes up too much of his time and is entirely too expensive?

If HE likes a midnight snack before going to bed, do you help him raid the ice-box, even though all you take is a glass of milk—or do you tell him not to dare touch the baked hunk because you are planning to have it for the next day's lunch?

If you can say "Yes" to the first half of each of those questions you are pretty safe in your natural assumption that you are giving your husband the companionship that every marriage needs.

But if you answer "Yes" to the last half you may be taking a lot for granted in assuming that you are the "right woman" for, as well as the wife of, the man you married.

Fifteenth largest city in the United States, New Orleans, La., had a population of 492,282 in 1940, compared to 458,762 in 1930, compared to 458,762 in 1930.

Lipcomb-Haynes Engagement Is Announced Today
Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Lipcomb, 1003 East Division, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Lipcomb, to Mr. R. D. Haynes of Monahans, Texas. The wedding will take place next month.

Leadership Training School
On Wednesday September 24, a large group of Little Rock Methodist Conference women met at 9:45 o'clock in the First Methodist church in Hope for an intensive day of "Leadership Training" with delegates from Nashville, Gurdon, Prescott, Blevins, Washington, Waterloo and Oak Grove.

The meeting opened with singing "Lead on O King Eternal". The devotion was given by the Rev. Kenneth L. Spore. He emphasized the fact that we are too busy for the best things in life. That we might be doing good things, yet not the best and that we were clutching at our spiritual life and had only the dregs of time and money for Christ and his work.

Mrs. H. W. Timberlake of Blevins, District Secretary, outlined the plans for the day. "Our Times", what does the Bible say of the time in which we are living? Mrs. Timberlake introduced Mrs. E. D. Galloway of De Queen who is conference secretary of Missionary Education and who spoke at length on that subject as a fall topic for Missionary Societies.

Miss Lila Ashby of Little Rock, social relation chairman, spoke on the Christian family. Saying that "home making was one of the greatest professions in the world" and told a tragic story of the Prodigal parents. Mrs. A. B. McKinney of Texarkana Conference President told of "Our Work."

A delicious two course luncheon was served in the recreation room at noon by members of the local society, during the luncheon hour, Mrs. McKinney and Mrs. Timberlake spoke of the young women's and girls and student work and one of their missions was to make for world friendship.

A worship service followed the luncheon in which Mrs. C. A. Evans of Little Rock, conference chairman of Spiritual Life Committee had for her theme "Seed Time and Harvest". Mrs. Timberlake spoke briefly on "Christianity and Democracy in America".

Following her address the meeting was adjourned by the presiding officer.

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

THE STORY: Associate magazine editor Judy Allen was congratulating herself on having her life all figured out—marriage with wealthy attorney Philip Rogers, handsome and dependable; a continued career in the magazine world; a comfortable home; a car; a maid; a perfect life. But when she thought she had everything, she found herself in a predicament. Her father, who she thought she loved, was not as simple as she thought. He was a man who had been in the army, and he was not as perfect as she thought. He was a man who had been in the army, and he was not as perfect as she thought. He was a man who had been in the army, and he was not as perfect as she thought.

FLIGHT TO NOWHERE
CHAPTER XVI
AS quickly as Sandy deposited Judy into the cabin he released her hands and legs, removed the gag from her mouth, and motioned to the man on guard to keep an eye on the girl until he started to taxi down the field.

It seemed to Judy, screaming, talking, crying, biting her lips in anger, that the ship went straight up. Sandy turned around and grinned at her.

"Happy?" he asked.

"Estate!" she answered in a mad voice. "I hate you!"

"Nice to know that you're thinking about me." His voice was gay and irresponsible. "Grand view, don't you think?"

She looked over the side of the plane unconsciously. Oh, yes, it was a wonderful view. Tens of thousands of people moved down there, free to get married, or go shopping, or telephone the police, or do anything they felt like doing. People who knew all about stability and safety and fires and candlelight and how much it cost to have a wedding with bridesmaids wearing cherry flounces and a bride and a husband you met at the altar.

Maybe if she kept her voice steady she could make Sandy obey her.

"Sandy." Tenderness, softness, intrigue hidden behind the cadent consonants, wrapped themselves around the name.

"Yes, Ma'am?" the friendly voice in front answered.

"If you didn't have on your helmet and weren't too far away

Super Western at Saenger

'Badlands of Dakota' Here Friday, Saturday

When the history of the picture industry is finally written, the chronicler will measure the progress of the art by the milestones of the big western pictures.

Almost every year has produced at least one mammoth western—"The Covered Wagon," "The Iron Horse," "Chinatown," "The Virginian," "Dodge City," "When The Daltons Rode," to name a few.

Latest of the frontier "epics" is Universal's "Badlands of Dakota." The picture, which comes to the Saenger Theater Friday, is of the same big-scale proportions that have marked its history-making predecessors. Like them, it embraces a glowing portion of frontier history, alive with characters which typify romance, adventure and glamour. And it presents a cast of excellent players.

The production stars Robert Stack and Ann Rutherford, two of Hollywood's most promising young players. The supporting cast includes Richard Dix, Frances Farmer, Brod Crawford, Hugh Herbert, Andy Devine, and Lon Chaney, Jr.

The story concerns Deadwood, in what was then (1876) the Territory of Dakota, and begins with the discovery of gold in the Black Hills. As the story unfolds, Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane and General Custer thread their way through the plot. The tale ends with the destruction of Deadwood by the Sioux Indians and the rescue of the townspeople by General Custer and his famous Seventh Cavalry.

Famous Relief
The Deadwood Stage, renowned as having been the most held up vehicle in America, also has an important role in the production.

Outstanding photographic backgrounds and fast-action camera effects are said to have been accomplished by Stanley Cortez, noted cinematographer. Jack Otterson, Universal's art director, is credited for the authentic and picturesque period settings.

The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green from an original story by Harold Shumate and screen play by Gerald Geraghty. George Waggoner was the associate producer.

Growth Shown
The twelfth census of the United States in 1900, showed the nation with a population of 75,994,575, an increase of 20.7 per cent over the 1890 figure of 62,947,714.

It has been estimated that the average Englishman drinks 1800 cups of tea a year.

OUT OUR WAY

Hints U. S. Is Hysteria-Proof

Public Apathy to Gas Shortage Is Significant

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Wading through the confusing maze of statements that have come out of the so-called oil shortage in the east, one is bound to stumble over some significant conclusions:

1 This is a continuation, if not a culmination, of the ancient fight between the oil companies and the railroads.

Railroad rates on petroleum products were four to six times tanker and pipeline rates. Any company that had its own pipelines or tankers was just that much ahead in its delivered price—BUT, any company that had a pipeline or a fleet of tankers was knocking the railroads out of just that much business.

In Georgia, the railroads blocked two interstate pipelines (one of them for 18 months) by refusing to grant rights-of-way across their rights-of-way until President Roosevelt, invoking the Cole act, granted the pipeline companies eminent domain on the theory that it was in the best interests of national defense to allow the pipeline companies to condemn property for right-of-way.

The railroads claimed they had 18,000 to 20,000 idle tank cars available. (This really was an "equivalent figure.") Nobody has been willing to guess even the actual number of idle tank cars, but the railroads claimed that if all available cars were put to best use, it would be equivalent to putting that number of cars on the rails.

Reserve Supplies Protected
Not until September did the railroads and oil companies get together to solve the shortage problem. When finally they did, the rail firms agreed to cut rates on crude and gasoline about 35 per cent.

2 There never really was any actual shortage of petroleum products—there did develop an alarming decline (and it could have grown greater if something hadn't been done to stop it) in reserve stocks. If this decline had been allowed to go on indefinitely, all the dire results that the most pessimistic predicted could have come about.

However, activities of the petroleum coordinator's office by September had cut this withdrawal of reserve stocks from 353,200 barrels a day to 174,500 barrels a day, with the virtual assurance that barring something unforeseen it would be eliminated entirely by spring.

3 That if the 17 eastern seaboard states and the District of Columbia are any criterion, the country can't be stamped into any hysteria by statements of politicians and business leaders. So apathetic was the public to the gasoline conservation program that consumption maintained its seasonal level or increased throughout the campaign.

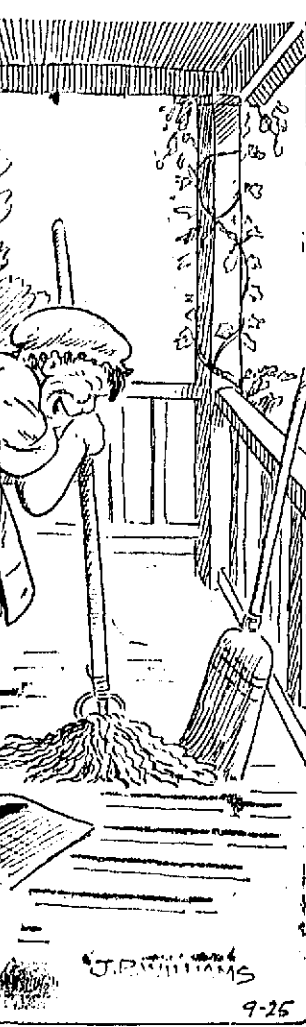

A Major Problem
4 That we haven't heard the last of this battle. Sen. Francis Maloney's investigation committee has promised to reopen hearings any minute—even to digging into "ulterior motives," if any, behind this overblown bubble. And that particular attention will be paid to the request of Russell E. Singler, general manager of the American Automobile association, that investigation be made of motor fuel price increases.

5 That even with all our fine highways, superb railroads and free waterways, distribution (or transportation) still is one of our prime problems and must be given equal consideration with production and manufacture in the national defense set-up.

6 That there's nothing like an investigation to start the ball rolling. Almost everything that has been done to alleviate the oil situation has been done since the investigation started. This has been a skirmish between production and distribution. Mr. Ickes and his boys just happened to get caught in the middle.

There are more than 800 small planets, or planetoids, in the solar system. Two out of every three families in the United States own automobiles.

They Sing for Their Supper

Blond Soprano Cooks Andante Dumpling

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Opera singers are really day laborers in the arts and they, too, need three squares a day. Hilda Burke, blond American soprano with the Metropolitan, likes substantial fare and gives us a few of the recipes she and her husband, Desire Defreze, their own home.

Veal Stew With Dumplings

(Serves 4 to 6)

One pound veal cut in small cubes, 2 cups hot water, 1/2 cup diced potatoes, 1/4 cup diced carrots, 1/4 cup chopped celery, 1/4 cup chopped onions, 1/2 cup lima or peas, 1 bay leaf, 1 can tomato sauce, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Dredge the meat in flour, brown in hot fat. Add hot water, cook slowly 1 hour. Add diced vegetables and seasonings; continue cooking 1/2 hour. Add tomato sauce, bring to boil, drop dumplings from spoon. Cover tightly and steam 12 to 15 minutes.

Dumplings

One cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Sift ingredients together, gradually stir in milk, add butter, and drop into boiling stew a tablespoonful at a time.

Miss Burke has a meatless recipe that provides good protein at low cost, will be welcomed by housewives who find the rising price of meat too much for their budgets.

Rice and Nut Loaf

(Serves 4 to 6)

One-half cup uncooked brown rice, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1/2 cup melted butter.

Cook rice in water until soft. Stir in well-beaten egg. Thoroughly mix nuts, chopped parsley, crumbs. Add to rice. Season with salt and pepper. Bring mixture to a boil, then simmer gently for 5 minutes. Remove from fire and add coarsely chopped hard-boiled eggs and parsley. Pour over

Egg Sauce

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 hard-boiled eggs, 1 tablespoon parsley.

Melt butter in saucepan, stir in flour; when thoroughly blended add milk which has been brought to a boil. Season with salt and pepper. Bring mixture to a boil, then simmer gently for 5 minutes. Remove from fire and add coarsely chopped hard-boiled eggs and parsley. Pour over

Duck Hunters Prepare Warning System

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)—Upper Mississippi river duck hunters are making plans to avert any recurrence of last fall's unexpected and tragic blizzard in which more than a score of Nimrods died.

They are working through federal and state agencies to expedite storm warnings, develop coast guard patrols in emergencies and provide an airplane guard over the duck sloughs to caution hunters of impending danger.

Hundreds of hunters out for an Armistice day shoot were caught unprepared when an autumn rain developed into a severe snow-storm.

Vols Win Again From Dallas

Texas Champs Prove Easy for Nashville Team

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Nashville Vols won their third straight game of the Dixie Series from Dallas Wednesday night, 8 to 6, after cutting off a Rebel rally in the ninth that netted four runs.

Behind the fine pitching of Lefty Russell in the first seven innings, Nashville ran up an 8-to-2 edge after the Vol sluggers got to Gordon Maltzberger, Dallas hurler.

The victory brought the Vols within one game of a clean sweep of the series featuring the play-off champions of the Texas and Southern leagues. The fourth game will be played here Thursday night.

Played before a crowd of 6,190 and on a field swept by a high wind which turned fly balls into hits and forced a brief halt in the sixth, in which the groundkeepers wetted down the infield dust, the game was all Nashville until the ninth.

Army to Return Through State

To Return From Louisiana Maneuvers
Oct. 1 to 5

LITTLE ROCK—All Second Army units will leave the Louisiana maneuver area between October 1 and 5. Lt. Col. Samuel G. Fairchild, Camp Robinson commander, was notified Wednesday. Advance detachments will precede the rest of the units by two days.

A repetition of the clogged condition of Arkansas highways caused by movements into the area last month was seen with the announcement troops will return to their bases over the same routes.

The Twenty-seventh Division of New York, based at Camp McClellan, Ala., will return through Lake Village and Greenville, Miss. The Thirty-fifth Division, based at Camp Robinson, and the Fifth and Thirty-third divisions will return through Pine Bluff and Little Rock. The Second Cavalry and Sixth Division, both of which passed through here on route to the area, will leave the state at Texarkana.

Railroads for distribution of supplies will be established at Pine Bluff, Malvern and Texarkana until all Second Army units have left Louisiana. Army camps will be used, when possible, as bivouac sites on the return trips, it was announced. Several Arkansas towns, used as bivouac sites on the southward journey, probably will be designated again, officers said.

which they have in this cotton. On the basis of present markets, middling 15-16 inch cotton in the 1938 loan is worth about 6.5 cents a pound above the 1938 loan. Most of the producers will probably want to redeem their cotton or sell their equities rather than wait for the settlement from pool operations.

Under the pool operations plan, loan cotton from each crop will be placed in a separate pool, with the producer retaining title to the cotton. On liquidation of the cotton, net proceeds after deduction of advances and accrued costs, including storage, insurance and handling charges, will be distributed among producers whose cotton has been placed in the pool, in proportion to their interest. No sales of the pooled stocks will be made prior to March 1, 1942.

Below is a list of producers for whom we do not have the present address:

Katie Adams, Katie Alton, Arthur Blakley, Beamer Bradley, J. E. Britt, Jimmie Brown, Frank Calvin, J. E. Carr, R. N. Colvard, James Cook, C. B. Ebberson, J. R. Fulson, G. L. Gray, Henry Graves.

Over-sager powder boys on the Serapis had piled ammunition behind the guns. There was an ear-ringing explosion. The Serapis shook, battle lanterns went black and the only light came from the Richard's guns and the Serapis' affire.

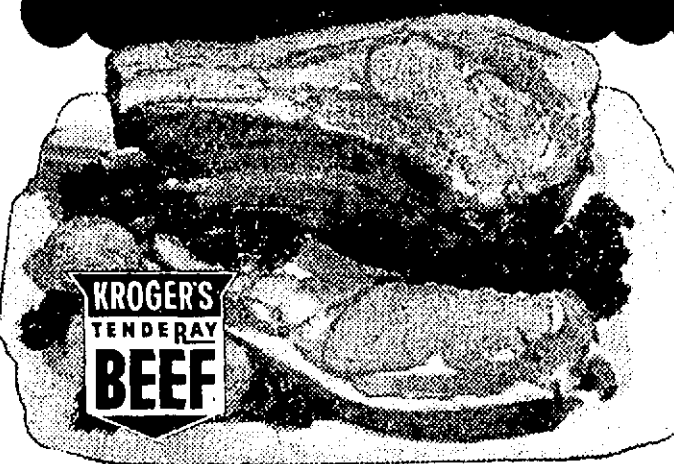

It was the beginning of the end. The battle went on for half an hour more. But it was no use. At 10:30 that evening the mainmast, weakened by fire and shot, crashed down. Captain Pearson walked aft and hailed down his colors.

The tradition of an always victorious American navy was begun.
